College is the assimilation of fragments. The initial perception of experience is kaleidoscopic. As we seek to understand relationships, we gather and compose these fragments into a mosaic. The many colors that make up the mosaic are crystalized in the prism. Held to the light, the prism, small in itself, can color and illuminate the largest room.

THE ESSENCE OF AN EDUCATION

awareness of the values of the past . . . anticipation of the demands of the future . . .

impels one to think—
critically, creatively, constructively . . .

and to express those thoughts . . .
to question

to search, to weigh,
to choose . . .

to comprehend . . . and appreciate

to play . . . and to laugh

to work—and to accept responsibility
... to widen horizons.

ADMINISTRATION

PRESIDENT

ANNE GARY PANNELL

"Life is a problem, a task, an ordeal, even at times an agony; it is also fascinating, challenging, and intense. All of us living today cannot wish to hide our heads either in the sands of the past or of the future. We must have a sense of new horizons. We must face with outward vision a restless human world and, with cheerful hearts, help this world to mend its broken spirits. The full task of education is both to train people in freedom and to prepare them for freedom; to teach them control of themselves as well as of their world. This, then, is what educated women need for the future: the self-discipline of affection for other people . . ."

FRAGMENTS

We are the fragments of men's dreams—the makers of memories . . .

we are the ever-changing face of this world where dreams are made: giving life to the fast crescendo of each new moment . . .

we come from the cross-roads of existence . . .
we are the paradox full-blown . . .

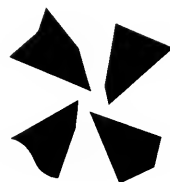

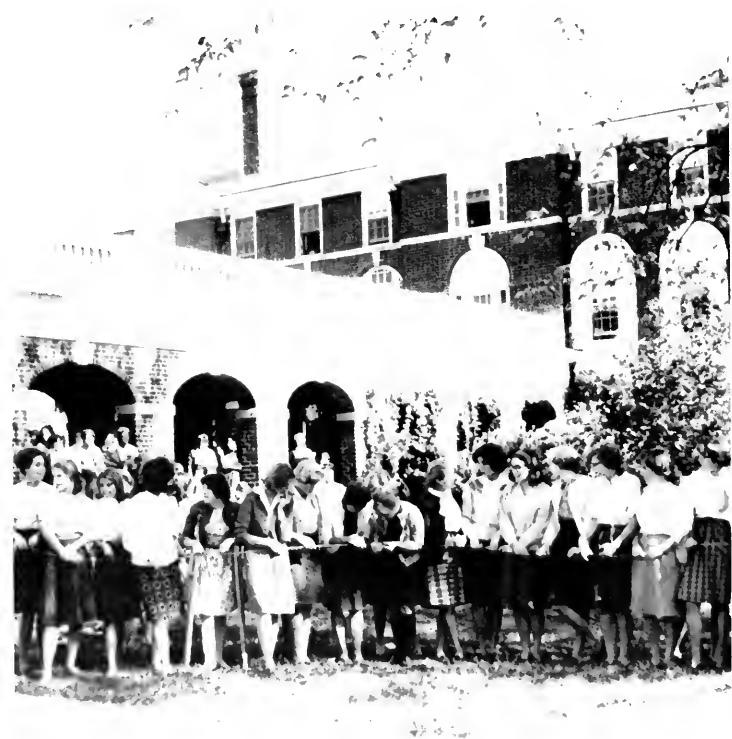

seekers of silences . . . restless as a bronzed leaf in the sneeze of a windy afternoon . . .

we are the mirror—reflecting the level of a civilization . .

we inherit . . . to give a heritage.

EDITOR'S ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

When the day arrives that the job is done, an editor breathes a grateful sigh of relief . . . and disbelief. In due time, however, an editor comes to realize that she didn't do as much as she sometimes gave herself credit for; and that without the help, cooperation, and understanding of certain other people there would be no finished product to breathe a sigh of relief over. I would like to thank those certain other people to whom much credit is due.
